Salers: “Flying High in Ohio” 2010 National Junior Salers Show Results

Lancaster, Ohio - Celebrating their 26th Annual Junior National Show, Junior Salers breeders from 13 states came together in Lancaster, July 7 – 10, to participate in the heifer show and other educational contests and seminars.

The competition, held at the Fairfield County Fairgrounds, set a high standard. Judge Steve Patton of Frankfort, Ind., addressed the crowd and commented that Salers cattle are a very solid and proven breed. “Anyone would like to have these cattle in their pasture.” Patton was highly complimentary about the quality of cattle exhibited at this years show.

The ASJA is the junior association of the American Salers Association. Its mission is to enhance the Salers breed, involve and educate junior Salers enthusiasts and to develop future leaders for the Beef Cattle Industry.

Each year for the past 26 years the ASJA has held Junior National Show events where ASJA members compete with members from across the United States. The highlight of the Junior National is the National Heifer, Steer, Bull Calf and Cow/Calf Show. The week is also full of educational workshops and events unique to each junior show location.
